25X1	WATCH COMMITTEE CONCLUSIONS
1	On the basis of findings by its Watch Committee, the United States Intelligence Board concludes that:	No
	No Sino-Soviet bloc country intends deliberately to initiate direct military action in the immediate future. However, current military measures associated with Soviet bloc - Warsaw Pact exercises are improving bloc military capabilities in Eastern Europe, and could afford the bloc a cover for preparations for hostilities.	25X1

Nepali Exiles May Attempt Move Against King Mahendra

Previous reports indicated that Subarna's organization had been aiming at mid-October--when the King would be out of the country--as its possible target date for the beginning of agitation designed to restore the Nepali Congress party to power. Subarna, however, appeared to be holding a final decision in abeyance in the hope that he could reach some sort of accommodation with the King in a face-to-face encounter on Indian soil. Subarna's reported decision now to await the monarch's return from Communist China and Mongolia before setting off the agitation within Nepal suggests that he may retain some slight hope that the threat of such action will persuade the King to compromise.

Subarna's effort since December to rally the Nepali exiles in India and to create a viable network with Nepal has been complicated by his own indecision and by periodic shortages of funds. In addition, he has failed to gain any significant international support for his movement. The Praja Socialist party in India has afforded him some assistance, and he has reportedly obtained a few small arms from the Burmese and the Israeli Socialists. The Indian Government and India's ruling Congress party, however, have been circumspect in their dealings with Subarna, allowing him freedom of movement and activity, privately sympathizing with his cause, warning him against embarrassing New Delhi in its relations with Katmandu, refusing direct support, and, on occasion, urging him to seek an accord with the King.

Subarna probably recognizes that he has little prospect of overthrowing the King if the Indian Government remains aloof. He also appears to realize that his organization's momentum--and perhaps his control--is likely to begin to slip unless some action against the monarch is undertaken soon. He appears to have despaired of obtaining advance pledges of support and now may calculate that he can draw support from India once he has something going.
